Château La Boutignane

Château La Boutignane Corbières

France
Languedoc-Roussillon

Syrah, Carignan, Grenache, Cinsault, Mourvèdre

The History

The Corbières vineyards are situated in Fabrezan in the Aude region, reputed to be the warmest region in France and where the rainfall is low. The influence of the Mediterranean is dominant, with a slight Oceanic influence from the West. Winds coming from both directions, bringing a welcome amount of humidity much appreciated by the vines growing in a soil made up mainly of schist. 60 Hectares of vineyards, situated around the village of Fabrezan which is located within the county of Aude in the Languedoc region. The Chateau was built at the end of the 18th Century and the cellars were added in 1912. The innovative winemaking cellars were designed by the architectural company of Gustave Eiffel. Intense and spicy full-bodied wines that speak to us of bold Cathar strongholds, high on the wind-carved Corbières massif, and of vineyards on wild hillsides, bathed in the unblinking Mediterranean sun.

The wines are made from Carignan, Syrah and Grenache and Cinsault, endowing the wines with an excellent aromatic balance.
